Stephanie Henry practices commercial litigation with a specialty in employment and labour disputes. Stephanie has assisted with matters before all levels of court and has acted for clients in matters involving government agencies and administrative tribunals. Stephanie has experience with both federally and provincially regulated workers in unionized and non-unionized environments.

Prior to joining our Calgary office, Stephanie practiced both commercial and employment litigation at other national law firms.

During law school, Stephanie was actively engaged with Community Legal Aid Services and continues to volunteer with Pro Bono Law Alberta.
