Lorri Chu is the Student Coordinator for the Toronto office, a position she has held for several years. Lorri is the first point of contact for students applying for summer student and articling student positions. She manages the administration of the application process for students, including the processing of applications as they are received, and interacting with students during the recruiting period. Lorri keeps in contact with all new summer student hires to facilitate a seamless and successful start their first week at the firm.

Articling students benefit from Lorri's ongoing coordination and assistance, including numerous Law Society of Upper Canada matters, preparation of paperwork for fees, oral exam preparations, from their 10 month articling term to their call to the Bar.
